CERTIFICATE OF INDEPENDENT BID DETERMINATION

- 1 This Standard Bidding Document (SBD) must form part of all bids¹ invited.
- 2 Section 4 (1) (b) (iii) of the Competition Act No. 89 of 1998, as amended, prohibits an agreement between, or concerted practice by, firms, or a decision by an association of firms, if it is between parties in a horizontal relationship and if it involves collusive bidding (or bid rigging).² Collusive bidding is a pe se prohibition meaning that it cannot be justified under any grounds.
- 3 Treasury Regulation 16A9 prescribes that accounting officers and accounting authorities must take all reasonable steps to prevent abuse of the supply chain management system and authorizes accounting officers and accounting authorities to:
 - a. disregard the bid of any bidder if that bidder, or any of its directors have abused the institution's supply chain management system and or committed fraud or any other improper conduct in relation to such system.
 - b. cancel a contract awarded to a supplier of goods and services if the supplier committed any corrupt or fraudulent act during the bidding process or the execution of that contract.
- 4 This SBD serves as a certificate of declaration that would be used by institutions to ensure that, when bids are considered, reasonable steps are taken to prevent any form of bid-rigging.
- 5 In order to give effect to the above, the attached Certificate of Bid Determination (SBD 9) must be completed and submitted with the bid:

² Bid rigging (or collusive bidding) occurs when businesses, that would otherwise be expected to compete, secretly conspire to raise prices or lower the quality of goods and / or services for purchasers who wish to acquire goods and / or services through a bidding process. Bid rigging is, therefore, an agreement between competitors not to compete.

BULK WATER SUPPLY AND DROUGHT
MANAGEMENT FOR

INCLUDING STAND ALONE DAMS AND WATER SUPPLY SYSTEMS

Introduction

The mandate of DWS to regulate water and sanitation services is given in Section 155(7) of the Constitution. The Cabinet-approved Strategic Framework for Water Services (2003) sets out a vision for the sector with specific goals and targets. One of the agreed sector goals is “the effective regulation of water and sanitation services”.

The sector vision has three important elements:

- All people living in South Africa have access to adequate, safe, appropriate and affordable water and sanitation services, use water wisely and practise safe sanitation.
- Water supply and sanitation services are provided by effective, efficient and sustainable institutions that are accountable and responsive to those whom they serve. Water services institutions reflect the cultural, gender and racial diversity in South Africa.
- Water is used effectively, efficiently and sustainably in order to reduce poverty, improve human health and promote economic development. Water and wastewater are managed in an environmentally responsible and sustainable manner.

Effective regulation will assist in the realisation of this vision. Regulation is also necessary to protect both the consumers of the service by ensuring that services are safe, dependable, meet defined standards and are good value, as well as the providers of the service by ensuring that providers have adequate resources to sustainably provide the service and are free from operational interference.

DWS as the National Regulator has developed a National Water Services Regulation Strategy (NWSRS) which outlines the functions it has to undertake to fulfil its mandate. The NWSRS Economic Regulation chapter was taken into consideration in the development of the regulator model options analysis and considered relevant to be extended to water resources side of business to achieve a value chain approach.

Business Needs Analysis

The NWSRS and Economic Regulator Model options report states that the objective of economic regulation is to ensure that the services provided to consumers by water services providers are appropriate, effective, efficient and sustainable and that the service providers are efficient and sustainable. The provision of water services in SA is seen as a social component as provision is entrenched in the Bill of Rights. It has to be noted though that water has a strong economic component; making efficient and reliable provision essential for economic growth..

In 2010 several Key Outcomes were defined by government. One of these was the creation of “an Independent Water Regulator to implement price regulation”. The outcome having to do with economic regulation was Outcome 6: An Efficient, Competitive and Responsive Economic Infrastructure Network. The target year to have the Regulator in place was 2014.

In 2012, the Department initiated the project called Pricing Economic and Regulation Reform, which focuses on three strategic issues, namely:

- a. Review of the Pricing strategy;
- b. Development of Funding model for water infrastructure; and
- c. Establishment of an Economic Regulator for the water sector (entire water value chain).

The establishment of an economic regulator is also advocated by the National Development plan 2030 edition, whereby it says “South Africa has a relatively good core network of national economic infrastructure. The challenge is to maintain and expand it to address the demands of the growing economy. In the transport and energy sectors – dominated by state-owned enterprises – the economy has already been constrained by inadequate investment and ineffective operation and maintenance of existing infrastructure. In the telecommunications field, policy and regulatory uncertainty and lack of capability remain barriers to infrastructure investment and to achieving affordable, quality services, especially for the poor. In the water sector, delaying critical investments may result in water shortages during a drought period. Access to basic electricity, water and sanitation, and public transport for many South Africans, particularly in poor rural and peri-urban communities, accessing electricity, safe water, sanitation, telecommunications and public transport is a daily challenge. Even where infrastructure is available, households can often not afford enough electricity and water to cook and stay warm, or the fares to go to town to look for work”.

Water has many elements of monopoly meaning that it is impossible for a consumer to switch to another provider as access to water services is only allowed through nominated water services providers in terms of the Water services Act no 108 of 1997. The consumers therefore cannot choose the service provider that will oversee their water provision at any point of the value chain.

To minimise on the monopoly power that is so rife in the water sector, the economic regulator has to address market failure and externalities through the regulation of water prices across the value chain. Rules has been set and implemented however in isolation in the form of pricing strategy for raw water charges and norms and standards for tariff setting. Pricing regulations are to be developed through the consolidation of the pricing strategy and norms and standards in order to cover the entire value chain. The regulations will be used to guide and direct water entities on the primary determinants for water tariffs in the country mindful of the interdependence of the various levels of water in the value chain. Tariff assessment models for the review of bulk water tariffs and retail water tariffs are in place, however gaps still exist in regard to intermediaries and the reliability in measuring the pricing impact on the society and the economy are concerned. Of relevance is also a systematic guideline that presents the different methods of tariff regulation highlighting on critical considerations thereof.

The National Development Plan (NDP) mandates that Economic Regulators’ needs to be established for all trading services. To date, the economic regulator models report is in place which supports the establishment of an independent Economic Regulator. The Department has however decided to establish an Internal Regulator in 2014 in order to build capacity before going independent. The Department is now ready to start a process of establishing an Independent Economic Regulator and transfer out all the functions done by the Chief Directorate. The establishment of the Independent Economic Regulator is highly dependent on the amendment of the water legislative framework to afford the regulator the necessary powers to enforce their assigned responsibilities.

Provided for in the NWSRS, the Regulatory Performance Measurement System (RPMS) has been the only sustainable initiative implemented to reveal the true performance of Water Service Authorities, using all the eleven (11) key performance indicators (KPIs) as per the SFWS. The RPMS does take into consideration the outcomes of the Blue Drop, Green Drop and No Drop outcomes which represent KPI 5 - Water quality, 6 - Waste water quality and 11 - Water Use Efficiency on the SFWS.

In the tariff assessment process there will always be regulatory findings that require remedies to redress on the non-compliance. Currently the water board tariffs are approved by the Minister after an evaluation by the regulator. The retail water and sanitation tariffs charged by the Water Services Authorities (WSAs) remain a constitutional challenge between National and Local Government of usurping on other sphere's executive authority. Effective regulation of municipal tariff requires analysis and correct interpretation of legislation, thus a legislative handbook on the regulation of municipal services by a national regulator is a need in order to minimize conflicts, resistance and litigations. It is also a critical consideration to remove any ambiguities in the regulatory framework as provided for in the Strategic Framework for Water Services (2003) with a view to align it to the Constitution of South Africa to allow for effective regulation.

The NWSRS provides for financial transparency and ring-fencing. Where water services provision is not ring-fenced, it is required to be accounted for separately. Put differently, it is a view of the Chief Directorate that the municipalities that are not WSAs and are contracted to the WSAs must account for water and sanitation provision separately from the municipal accounts as the authority does account appropriately in terms of National Treasury requirements. Not much work has been done on this subject and it is one of the key functions that need to be fulfilled to effect full scope of Economic Regulation.
